TUESDAY EVENING NONFICTIONEERS

Tuesday, May 6
7 PM
American Sphinx
by Joseph Ellis

"Joseph J. Ellis's American Sphinx is a brief and elegant return to Monticello. Mr. Ellis . . . is a remarkably clear writer, mercifully free of both the groveling and the spirit of attack that have dominated the subject in the past. . . . American Sphinx is fresh and uncluttered but rich in historical context." Brent Staples, The New York Times Book Review

CRITICS' CIRCLE BOOK GROUP

Tuesday, June 17
7 PM
A Thousand Splendid Suns
by Khaled Hosseini

The author of The Kite Runner returns with the tale of two very different Afghan women brought together by circumstances and tragedy.

"What keeps this novel vivid and compelling are Hosseini's eye for the textures of daily life and his ability to portray a full range of human emotions, from the smoldering rage of an abused wife to the early flutters of maternal love." Los Angeles Times

POETRY DISCUSSION GROUP

Friday, June 20
1 PM
Selected Poems
Philip Larkin

"Larkin is resolute, forthright, witty, and gloomy. This is the man who famously said that deprivation was for him what daffodils were for Wordsworth. Yet surely the results of this life, in the shape of his poems, are gifts, not deprivations." Donald Hall, The New Criterion

Note: No Poetry Group meetings in July or August.

Old Filth
by Jane Gardam

The reminiscences of lawyer and judge Sir Edward Feathers (known universally as FILTH, for Failed in London, Try Hong Kong) cover the scope of 20th century history in a novel that is both sharply witty and compassionate. Gardam's acutely observed and richly layered novels consistently win a place on the short-list for major British literary prizes but are generally less well-known in the United States.
